The Final Tribute Is Paid To The Memory Of W.R. Moody Many Prominent Persons Attend

Northfield and the world paid its final tribute to the memory of William R. Moody last Saturday afternoon when many prominent people from various parts of the country and our own citizens completely filled the Trinitarian Congregational Church for the funeral services, the church from which his father, the famous evangelist Dwight L. Moody was buried thirty-five years ago.

Many distinguished persons from New York, Philadelphia, Boston and other cities were here for the service and business was suspended

A solid bank of flowers from friends far and near extended across the front of the platform and the casket rested in front of the pulpit.

The service opened with the hymn, "The Sands of Time Are Sinking," Mr. Moody's favorite hymn. This was followed by Rev. W. Stanley Carne's reading of the Apostle's creed, the scripture, and prayer. The address was given by Rev. Paul Scherer, pastor of Holy Trinity Lutheran church, New York for many years a speaker at the Northfield summer conferences.

Dr. Paul Dwight Moody, only brother of William R. Moody and president of Middlebury College in Vermont, gave reminiscences of his brother and father. He said that on the father's death the duty fell on the shoulders of Will in directing the two schools the evangelist had founded and the annual Summer general conference of Christian work-

Dr. Moody declared the burden had been too great for the elder son and that Will had fallen under it. "I feel I would be failing in my duty if I did not say this.

"Great as Will Moody was as an educator and a religious leader, we who were closest to him know that his true greatness was as a son, a husband, a father and a brother."

The congregation then sang "On the Resurrection Morning," and benediction was given by the pastor. Burial was in Canter cemetery, Northfield, in the family lot. Bearers, chosen from the faculty of the Northfield schools, were Horace E. Morse, Richard L. Watson, Stephen Stark, Lester A. Polhemus, George McEwan, and William S. Yeager.

Among those attending the funeral were George Stebbins, last survivor of Dwight L. Moody's close associates in evangelistic work; Wilfred W. Fry of Philadelphia, president of the Northfield schools; Edwin Bulkley of New York, treasurer of the board of trustees; J. Stuart Baker, trustee of New York; Glen Wright, college classmate of Mr. Moody at Yale in the class of 1891, now of New York; Frederick A. Newton of Andover, president of the Mount Hermon alumni association; Bishop John Dallas of the diocese of New Hampshire; Dr. Robert E. Speer of New York, senior secretary of the Presbyterian board of foreign missions; Judge Robert Parker of Westfield, chairman of the Northfield religious education conference.

Mr. Moody was born at Chicago March 25, 1869 the second child and first son of Dwight L. and Emma (Revell) Moody. At this time D. L. Moody, the father, was already engaged in evangelistic work, the early climax of which came when he went to Great Britain for his first the life of one of the great builders of this school. Some men received a legacy of stocks and bonds of the great builders extended mission lasting from 1873 until 1875. In the fall of the latdy received a greater inheritance, for he received a responsibility ter year the family stayed in Northfield, where the mother of D. L. Moody lived in the Birthplace, which is visited by thousands annually

In Northfield the children, Emma, William and Paul, grew up. h D. L. Moody was chiefly interested in evangelism, he estated to the florthfield seminary for girls and in 1881 the mon soon after its inception and was graduated with the first class that of 1887. The father, realizing his own lack of formal education, resolved that his children should receive sound instruction and there fore, after leaving Mount Hermon, William went to Yale and was graduated in 1891 and Paul after leaving Hermon in 1897 was graduated from Yale in 1901.

After a brief period of uncertainty regarding his life work upon leaving college, William R. Moody in 1895 went to live at Mount Hermon school, where according to the plan of his father, the son should formiliarize himself with the marking of the father, the son should familiarize himself with the workings of the educational insti-tutions established on either bank of the Connecticut. He brought his bride to the newly built home now called Dwight's home in honor of their only son, who died an infant.

Mr. Moody's widow, Mary Whittle is the daughter of the late Maj. D. W. Whittle of Chicago, who had been associated with Dwight L. Moody in evangelistic work for many years. She is a gifted singer and composer of gospel hymns, having been editor of several issues of the Northfield Hymnal, as well as composer of a number of hymns. She was one of the prime organizers of the Northfield girls' conference and also of the Virginia fresh-air camp.

With the growth of the schools, William Moody's presence was increasingly required in the central administrative offices of the two schools and therefore, in 1898, the family moved to Northfield. Here the other children were born, with the exception of Irene. Thos surviving are Mary ,now Mrs. Arthur W. Packard of New York city; Constance, now Mrs. W. W. Chase of East Northfield; Margaret, now Mrs. Frank Smith of New York city, and Beatrix of East Northfield, personal secretary to her father.

Upon the death of Dwight L. Moody on December 22, 1899 in his home at East Northfield, the chief work and responsibility was passed over by the father to the son as a sacred trust. For the first 25 years of this century until his illness in 1925, William R. Moody carried forward the effectiveness of the schools, maintaining the sound principles upon which his father established them, and at the same time a dapting them to changing conditions. Although Mr. Moody had been vitally interested in the Record of Christian Work as editor, and in making arrangements as chairman of the Northfield general conference for Christian workers, his greatest responsibilty had been the schools. Largely through his work, the founder to this generation became better known as an educator than as an evangelist.

In 1912 the Northfield seminary and Mount Hermon school, which had been carried on under separate charter, were merged under a new corporation under the name of the Northfield schools. The reason for this change was to effect greater economy in administration. Under this new plan there was one board of trustees for the two schools. The policies and principles were in no way affected. The president of the board of trustees was William R. Moody, who continued in that office until his illness removed him from such active duty.

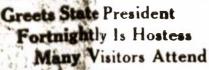

The years 1900-1925 saw much expansion in the physical equipment of the schools. In 1909, the D. Willis James Memorial gymnasium second Antarctic expedition is Gordon H. Fountain, 19-year-old was erected at Mount Hermon; in 1911 a new Crossley hall, a dormitory for boys was built; Mrs. A. F. Schauffler provided money for a Memorial library; Mrs. George E. Holbrook and her sons of Keene, N. H., also gave Holbrook hall to serve as an administrative building; West hall the spacious dining hall, was made possible by the gift of Miss Grace Dodge of New York. At the seminary similarly valuable additions were made. Kenarden hall, the administrative offices for the seminary, and also the center of the seminary and also the center of the seminary. tral office for both schools, was the gift of Mrs. John S. Kennedy of New York city in 1912; Mrs. Finley Shepard, in 1913, had Gould hall, the largest dormitory of the school built at her own cost; Russell Sage chapel was erected in 1909 by Mrs. Sage as a memorial; Mrs. Sage also made a gift of the Margaret Olivia music hall, and later Fleming H. Revell, the publisher and uncle of Mr. Moody gave a chime of bells for the chapel tower. In 1913, through a gift by Mrs. Kennedy the Homeada Dry Ginger Ale company, and an alumni counselor of Mount stead, D. L. Moody' old home was renovated for the use of Mr. and Mrs. William R. Moody to be occupied by them for life.

Whereas, in 1900 when Mr. Moody took over the administration Fountain worked on the Hear of of the schools the capital investment of the plant and endowment was Oakland, preparing it for the voyapproximately $1,500,000, in 1926 the total value had reached $5,age; this was the first of Byrd's ships to set out, having salled from 000,000. Whereas in 1900, fewer than 500 students attended the schools in 1926 almost 1200 were in attendance many coming from dis-Hoston late in September. In be-

In scholastic standing, the schools have risen to foremost rank in secondary education. Of prime importance to the founder and also to his son, regarding the schools, was the strongly Christian atmosphere and religious character which should prevail. Upright character and useful living based upon the teachings of Christ and the Bible—these were essentials of education. With adherence to these principles as central, there followed the respect for daily toil by hand, as exemplified in the required daily "work hours." This made it possible to help reduce the cost of board and tuition, so that at present $250. will cover total expenses for a boy or a girl for a year at either school.

a monthly religious periodical featuring the sermons and addresses given during the Northfield summer conferences, notably the general conference , over which he himself presided. Earlier this magazine had felt the influence of Dwight L. Moody, whose influence has dominated it throughout its entire history.

In 1920 the magazine became owned by the Northfield schools, with W.R. Moody as editor, A. P. Fitt, son-in-law of the founder and evangelist, as managing editor. The influence of the Record has carried the Northfield movement beyond the physical boundaries of the town to the far reaches of distant lands, with the evangelistic message of Christ as its theme. This was the constant emphasis of the editor, Wil-

The general conference for Christian workers, founded by Dwight L. Moody and established now for more than 50 years upon the death of the founder, was carried on largely through the efforts of its chairman, William R. Moody. Usually this conference meets during the first two weeks of August each year for the purpose of "Christian fellowship, Bible exposition and prayer." The gatherings have been attended by thousands annually, many coming from the South and West. Mr. Moody arranged the program, which consisted usually of several of the best preachers and religious leaders of Great Britain

Among the great religious speakers who attended the general conference under the leadership of Mr. Moody were: F. B. Meyer of London, Dr. John H. Jowett of London, Dr. James Moffatt, Bible translator: Dr. G. Campbell Morgan of London, Dr. John A. Hutton and Rev. Stuart Holden, both of England; Dr. Robert E. Speer of New York, Dr. Henry Sloane Coffin, Moderator John McDowell, and Dr.

In recognition of Mr. Moody's educational activities in behalf of the Northfield schools, Rutgers university bestowed the honorary degree of doctor of literature upon him in 1921. He wrote two biographies of his father; the first in 1900 called "The Life of D. L. Moody," in 1980. Mr. Moody traveled extensively through this country in behalf of the schools, often delivering addresses or making extemporaneous talks.

Joy-Ride The Dollar

By Governor Morris What stands between you and what stands between you and prosperity? Between you and the right to earn high wages if you are willing to work? Between you and the right to save and accumulate money and property against the days of your old age? Why nothing very much — nothing but the dollar. But not just any dollar—not the dollar that you spent in the grocery store ,or lost at the races or through a hole in your some other suitable person. races or through a hole in your pocket; not that dollar but the one that you are not willing to spend or throw away or lose.

The dollar that circulates - the dollar that passes from hand to hand and at the end of the year has done the work of a thousand dollars is fighting for you. It is your friend. But the dollar that cannot move that is hamstrung because of greed or fear is fightng against you.

Do you wish to give up your car and go back to the horse, to newspaper published in said draw your water from a well in Northfield, the last publication to stead of a faucet ,to get your knowledge of what is going on in the world from a little bird instead of from a radio, to travel in a cov-ered wagon instead of the latest Boeing? Then keep your dollar, hide it away, invest it in something which does not employ labor, let a bank freeze it, beat the Liberty over the head and emas-culate the Eagle!

If enough dollars do not begin to circulate within a brief time, our civilization is over ,and your hamstrung emasculated dollars will no longer be dollars. They will be of no more value than so many pinches of dust down the wind And you would be better off if you had hidden away a sack of

EDITORIAL

Librarians in many parts of the country need more books and magazines to meet the demand of thousands of new readers who now have leisure for self-improvement. Books are fast wearing out in libraries which have not the money to replace them. Books of all kinds are needed, but especially those on current topics, art, history, biography, gardening and standard fiction.

Public spirited citizens can help fill these shelves in two ways: by outright purchase and gift of books to libraries, and by selecting volumes from their personal libraries and giving them to their country or city libraries.

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt in a recent address stated that she expected much of the youth of the country in the coming days. Youth has courage and is less afraid to try out new ideas than most of us who may be termed as conservatives. Perhaps that is an optimistic view to take and especially if youth is considerate. After all each opinion and every action whether by young or old must be tempered by a personal regard for the opinions and action of others. Youth for energy and action may well be stated but age for judgment and experience should yet prevail.

Northfield loses in death a leading and well known citizen. William Revell Moody is no more but his name and work will live for many a day in the characters he influenced and in the enduring monuments of Christian and educational efforts which he sustained and expanded. Following in the footsteps of his father, he assumed the responsibilities and forwarded the work which the father had established, till ill health broke and crippled his endeavor but not his ambition. Will Moody has given us a good record of his stewardship and we pause to pay him the deserved honor of a grateful people. May God reward him abundantly in "the crossing of the

The first and fundamental idea of NRA is organization to the ultimate. The power of organization is immense. A fully organized and unchecked industry could exploit and dominate a whole nation. A fully organized and unchecked labor could do exactly the same. There must be responsibility in each such organization. There must be a check on these great powers.

Our government is government of the whole people. Its principal excuse for existence is protection of the whole people. These vast organizations of industry and of labor must each be responsible to government and each must admit governmental participation and control. So says Hugh S. Johnson and its message is complete with understanding.

True Values

The money god and greed have had their inning! Our lesson has been hard, but we're beginning To evaluate true worth,

And the blessings here on earth: Folks have been too busy counting up their winning. We'll appreciate the heart and mind, I'm thinking,

Stand up before our critics—without blinking; Plumage doesn't make fine Nor does talk, upon my word, Save a poor disabled craft when she is sinking. Pray, live on a higher plane! Be through with faking Strive to make a better world with less mud-raking!

To be happy we must share, Be unselfish, just and fair: Better things are on the way, they're in the making. George Arthur Smith, Yonkers
